Explanation to preprinted EC declaration of conformity

Electrical products placed on the European market must generally conform to various EU directives. Directives that require an EC declaration of conformity and product CE marking:

2006/95/EC	Low-voltage directive
2004/108/EC	Electromagnetic compatibility directive
1999/5/EC	Radio and telecommunications terminal equipment directive
2006/42/EC	Machinery directive
93/42/EEC	Medical device directive
97/23/EC	Pressure equipment directive
2004/22/EC	Measuring instruments directive
94/9/EC	Directive for equipment intended for use in potentially explosive atmospheres
2009/48/EC	Toy safety directive
2009/125/EC	Ecodesign directive
2011/65/EU	Restriction of the use of certain hazardous substances (RoHS)

Directives to additionally be complied with:

2001/95/EC	General product safety directive
2002/96/EC	Waste electrical and electronic equipment directive (WEEE)
(EC) 1907/2006	Registration, evaluation and authorization of chemicals (REACH)

Supplements relating to the new machinery directive 2006/42/EC:

concerning the clause 'declaration on sole responsibility that the product'

- the machine must be clearly identifiable;

concerning the clause 'responsible for the technical documentation is:'

- the name and signature of the person responsible for the technical documentation is required.

Our proposal for an EC declaration of conformity is contained on the previous page. The details of this proposal do not claim to be complete and only include the standards and directives verified by us.

We will be happy provide a comprehensive proposal for an EC declaration of conformity tailored to this product. This product was tested under the following reference number:
